

Dino in the Barn

Before taking Dairy Cattle Tech here at the university, I had very little experience with cows. This lab has opened me up to awesome new experiences that I never would've thought I would have! One of my favorite parts of the course is being assigned a pregnant cow. We have such a big part over the course of their pregnancy. We help treat them if they get sick, help out during their calving, as well as help out with care afterwards. We even get to name the calf! The newest member to the Witter Farm is the daughter of Ponyo, Pterodactyl! Pterodactyl is a loving little calf that gets excited at the sight of her milk bottle. You can find her in Pen 5! She is one of the first of many calves expected during this upcoming semester! Get ready for cuteness overload!
